ALEXIA GAGLIA
ARTIST

ABOUT ME

My name is Alexia, and I was born and raised in Greece. I hold a Bachelor's degree in History, Archaeology and Social Anthropology, as well as a Master's degree in Museum Studies. Alongside my academic background, I work professionally as an archaeologist and tour guide, fields that continuously shape the way I observe people, history, culture and human expression.

At the same time, I have been actively involved in art since 2019. What began during the period of the coronavirus pandemic gradually evolved into a personal artistic practice and a meaningful form of expression. During a time marked by isolation, uncertainty, social restrictions and broader sociopolitical tensions, art became a way to process everyday reality and create moments of reflection and emotional escape.

ARTIST STATEMENT

My artistic identity is centered on minimal line art and hand-drawn compositions created on paper using pencil and permanent marker. I believe that simplicity and conciseness can strongly reflect contemporary social realities, but also critically respond to them. In a world increasingly shaped by information overload, overconsumption, digital excess and continuous distraction, minimal line art becomes a way of reclaiming balance and awareness. Minimalism, for me, is not the absence of meaning, but rather a deliberate effort to reveal it through restraint.

My inspiration often emerges from spontaneous everyday moments, human interaction, movement and observation. At the same time, my academic background in History and Archaeology deeply influences my visual language, leading me to draw references from archaeological forms, ancient material culture and the broader field of the plastic arts.

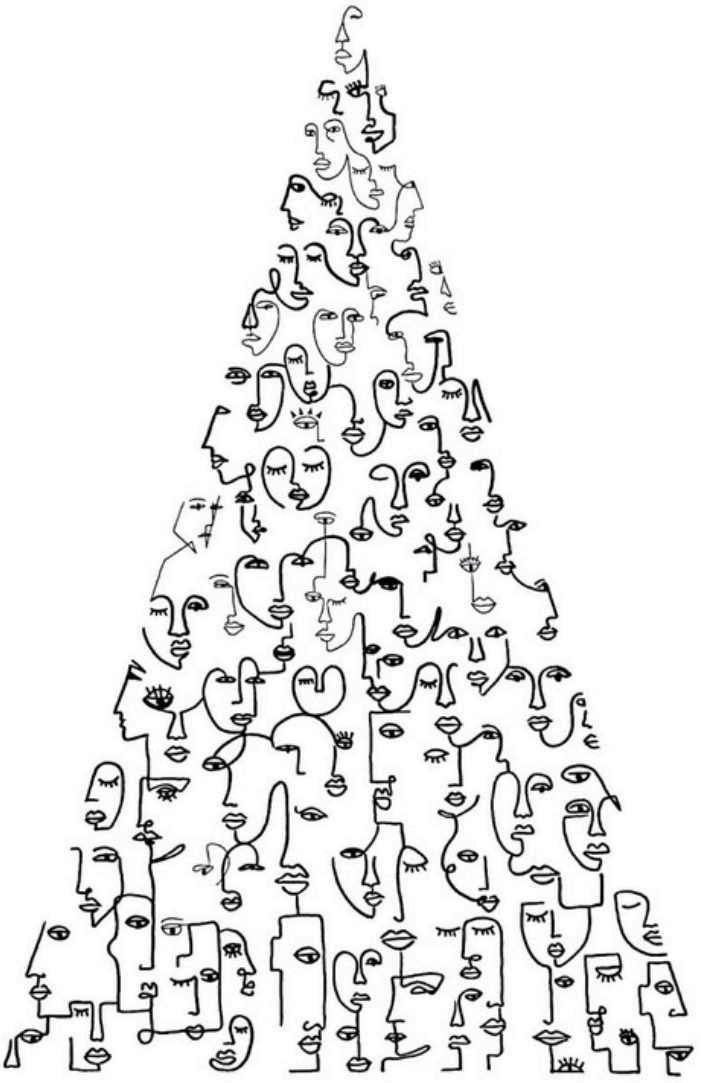

MY ART

"FRIENDS"

This artwork tries to reflect, to explore and even to expand the meaning and the power of friendship, especially in a world that is becoming increasingly impersonal, a world where people distance themselves, withdraw, isolate, while, in many cases, they believe that technology can replace human relationships.
